Built in the 1980s and tastefully renovated in the 1990s with premium materials, it stands on part of the grounds of the historic Vivenda Miramonte, once home to Dias Valente, founder and director of the João de Deus College — a distinguished figure in the history of Monte Estoril. The turrets, whose origins are rooted in medieval irish architecture, evoke a past where such structures stood as guardians: places of refuge, protection, and vigilance, where bells once rang to safeguard entire communities.
