You pull up and notice the fenced yard first, a quiet, contained space that feels ready for both play and privacy, then step inside where the living room welcomes you with easy light and a comfortable flow that carries into the heart of the home. The kitchen connects naturally to the dining room, keeping everyday life close and conversations effortless. On the first floor, the addition opens up new possibilities, with its own entrance and a separate full bath that creates a natural setup for an in-law suite, guest space, or private office, giving the home a flexibility that adapts to the way you live.
